

A donor may make an irrevocable gift of a remainder interest in a home while retaining a life interest to the use of that home. A charitable deduction is allowed and is calculated using depreciation and present value tables. The home may be a principal residence or a vacation home.